NEWS RELEASE

Modus Operandi Executive to Speak at SSTC Conference

MELBOURNE, FL, March 12, 2009 – Modus Operandi, a leading software and information integration technology company, will be participating in the Systems and Software Technology Conference (SSTC) in Salt Lake City, Utah, on April 22, 2009. Dr. Mark Heileman, vice president of advanced programs, is scheduled to present “Integrating Subjective Trust into Networked Infrastructures”. Dr. Heileman’s presentation will detail the results of a collaborative research project, in which Dr. Heileman and others studied the use of sophisticated semantic technologies to help ensure the trustworthiness of critical information in Department of Defense networks.

Co-presenters in the presentation are Dr. Greg Heileman, University of New Mexico and Jong Hwang, Wright Patterson Air Force Base. The theme of the SSTC conference is “Technology: Advancing Precision”. For more information, visit <http://www.sstc-online.org/>.
